"Walking is the perfect way of moving if you want to see into the life of things. It is the one way of freedom."

- Elizabeth von Arnim, The Adventures of Elizabeth in Rügen

SAFETY MATTERS TO ALL OF US

How can you help make your community more walkable and advocate for healthy changes?

This workshop will help you...

- Identify what makes your community walkable
- Experience walking through your senses
- Advocate for changes in community design
- Understand how pedestrian signals are timed
- Build confidence to lead your own walk audit
- Link walking to health and economic outcomes
- Find how planning and design policies impact walking

PARTICIPANTS WILL:

- Transition from student to teacher
- Explore smart-solutions for disability concerns that support walkability and accessibility
- Learn about available technical resources
- Have fun in an interactive and hands-on environment

Note: Considerable time spent outside. Comfortable walking shoes and outdoor attire are recommended.*
